

by COURTNEY CLASSAEN

Q: What is it like having your sister in the same school as you?

H: I really enjoy teaching at the same school as Samantha. She is a very accomplished scholar and athlete, and it's neat to celebrate her accomplishments in my workplace.

S: It's nice and cool because she is my favorite sister. Don't tell my other sisters that. But, it's also cool because there are a lot of people that have her class and they said they like her and she is a good teacher.

Q: What are the down sides of having your sister in the same school as you?

H: A downside for her is that she has to see me dance. I try not to embarrass her too much, though. It's awesome that I can walk from the cafeteria to the gym from Parent/Teacher conferences to Sam's basketball game.

S: There aren't any.

Q: What are the benefits of having your sister in the same school as you?

H: A big benefit is that I see her more often than I did living in Stillwater for my undergraduate studies. I like going to her games and being a part of her Homecoming and Courtwarming dance experiences.

S: I get to see her a lot. I didn't get to see her a lot since she went to school in Oklahoma, so it's nice to see her every day.

Q: How has being the in the same school as your sister changed your relationship?

H: Being home has brought me closer to all of my family members, so I would say that my relationship with Sam has changed for the better.

S: We are closer now than we have been before. We see each other more and she knows what is going on in school so we can talk about that, too.

Q: Compared to your other siblings in your family, how does your relationship with your sister differ?

H: My relationship with Samantha is definitely unique. I have always been impressed with how comfortable she feels in her skin as a high schooler – I admire that about her. My relationship differs with Sam because we are very different and have our own opinions, but we manage to make it work!

JEFF SALISBURY, JUNIOR

VS

PETER GRIFFIN

HUNTER BURCH, SOPH.

VS

JUSTIN BIEBER

ADRIAN SINGLETARY, HISTORY

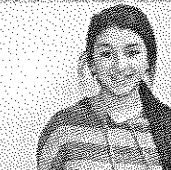

VS

YUNG HUMMA

DARIA CHASEMI, FRESHMAN

VS

KYLIE JENNER

SIBS OF SOUTHWEST by KYLE VANICE and KATIE BLECHINGER

S: Haylee is a lot older so she has already been through everything that I am going through right now which means she can give me advice on everything.